

Page last updated at 18:30 GMT, Monday, 4 January 2010

E-mail this to a friend

Printable version

Copenhagen climate deal 'satisfies' Saudi Arabia

By Richard Black
Environment correspondent, BBC News website

Saudi Arabia says it is "satisfied" with the conclusion of last month's UN climate summit in Copenhagen.

Saudi Arabia has argued for compensation from "lost" oil revenue

However, the country's lead negotiator Mohammad Al-Sabban told BBC News that the UN climate process may be heading for stalemate, like world trade talks.

Meanwhile, India's Prime Minister Manmohan Singh has become the latest world leader to admit that last month's summit made little progress.

The status of the agreement made in Copenhagen remains unclear.

The summit concluded without adoption of the "Copenhagen Accord" instigated by Brazil, China, India and South Africa (the BASIC group) and the US.

Most countries endorsed it, but not all; and governments could only agree to recognise the accord's existence.

A number of governments and leaders, including US President Barack Obama, have since admitted that this conclusion fell short of many peoples' expectations.

But Mr Al-Sabban said Saudi Arabia was content.

"I would like to express our satisfaction with the outcome," he wrote in an e-mail to BBC News.

"We were among the 25 or so countries who positively negotiated the accord along with the world leaders, and we had succeeded in including the interest of OPEC countries in the Copenhagen Accord."

However, a number of politicians from industrialised nations have since blamed the developing world for blocking progress; and this, he said, would exacerbate mistrust between rich and poor.

"If so, we may be heading to the same future of the World Trade Organization (WTO) Doha Round, which is facing a total stalemate."

Talks on the Doha Round began in 2001, but remain stalled over disputes between developed and developing world, largely over agricultural subsidies.

Environment groups have regularly accused Saudi Arabia of trying to block progress within the UN climate process to safeguard its fossil fuel industry.

The world's biggest oil producer has consistently argued that it should be compensated for any loss of revenue caused by international restrictions on greenhouse gas emissions.

Basic issues

Because of the unique circumstances of its conception, the status of the Copenhagen Accord remains unclear.

Governments have until the end of January to submit "actions" that they are prepared to take under the accord.

It is expected that those deciding to do so will merely re-state

▶ COPENHAGEN SUMMIT 2009

KEY STORIES

- ▶ Copenhagen depresses carbon price
- ▶ UN says Copenhagen deal 'a start'
- ▶ Correspondents' log
- ▶ Reaction in quotes
- ▶ World media reacts to climate deal

FEATURES AND ANALYSIS

Why did it fail?

Richard Black gives eight reasons why there was no global deal

- ▶ What did COP15 achieve?
- ▶ Copenhagen fails green investors
- ▶ Where's the beef?

BACKGROUND

- ▶ Deal at a glance
- ▶ Q&A: The Copenhagen summit
- ▶ Atmospheric change over 800,000 years
- ▶ Climate change glossary

VIDEO AND AUDIO

Ban Ki-moon: 'Essential beginning'

▶ Watch

Tuvalu rejects Copenhagen pact

▶ Watch

Climate deal 'neither strong nor fair'

▶ Watch

Miliband: Some wanted summit to fail

▶ Watch

Obama's closing statement in full

▶ Watch

AROUND THE BBC

Richard Black's Earth Watch

RELATED INTERNET LINKS

- ▶ UN climate convention

The BBC is not responsible for the content of external internet sites

TOP SCIENCE & ENVIRONMENT STORIES

- ▶ Night-sky image is biggest ever
- ▶ Phantom Eye 'spy plane' unveiled
- ▶ Higgs discovery rumour is denied

RSS | News feeds

RSS | News feeds

MOST POPULAR STORIES NOW

- News Front Page
- World
- UK
- England
- Northern Ireland
- Scotland
- Wales
- Business
- Politics
- Health
- Education
- Science & Environment
- Technology
- Entertainment
- Also in the news

- Video and Audio
- Have Your Say
- Magazine
- In Pictures
- Country Profiles
- Special Reports

- Related BBC sites
- Sport
- Weather
- Democracy Live
- Radio 1 Newsbeat
- CBBC Newsround
- On This Day
- Editors' Blog

existing commitments on curbing greenhouse gas emissions and on funding climate protection in the poorest parts of the world.

As one of the Copenhagen Accord's architects, India has not escaped criticism about the agreement's lack of ambition.

Speaking at the Indian Science Congress, Mr Singh said India "must not lag behind" in the adoption of low-carbon technologies.

"We were able to make only limited progress at the Copenhagen summit, and no-one was satisfied with the outcome," he said.

"And yet there is no escaping the truth that the nations of the world have to move to a low-greenhouse-gas-emissions and energy-efficient-development path."

Reports indicate that the BASIC group is to meet later this month to plot a course forward.

UK Prime Minister Gordon Brown, meanwhile, told the BBC that progress based on the Copenhagen Accord was possible.

"I think it's not impossible that the groundwork that was done at Copenhagen could lead to what you might call a global agreement that everybody is happy to stand by," he said.

Richard.Black-INTERNET@bbc.co.uk

Mr Brown said Copenhagen may yet yield a way forward

- SHARED READ WATCHED/LISTENED
- 1 BBC News
- 2 BBC News
- 3 BBC News
- 4 BBC News
- 5 BBC News
- 6 BBC News
- 7 Church 'colluded' with sex abuse bishop
- 8 UK rail ticket machines hit by IT glitch
- 9 BBC News
- 10 BBC News

▶ Most popular now, in detail

Bookmark with:

What are these?

- Delicious
- Digg
- reddit
- Facebook
- StumbleUpon

E-mail this to a friend

Printable version

PRINT SPONSOR

FEATURES, VIEWS, ANALYSIS

Ghost town
Has China's housing bubble burst?

The guerilla plant
How the world's oldest clove tree defied an empire

Walking away
Why Royal Ballet principal Sergei Polunin quit

MOST POPULAR NOW | The most read story in the UK is: Government wins Commons VAT votes
MOST POPULAR NOW | The most read story in Australasia is: In pictures: New 9/11 photos released

SKIP TO TOP

PRODUCTS & SERVICES

- E-mail news
- Mobiles
- Widgets & Alerts
- News feeds
- Interactive TV
- Podcasts

Mobile site

Terms of Use
Privacy
Cookies

About the BBC
Accessibility Help
Contact the BBC
Parental Guidance

Copyright © 2017 BBC. The BBC is not responsible for the content of external sites. Read more.